INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS

THE BEST EDUCATION

The tools that will guide you on your way

Mexico has become more integrated with the rest of the world; therefore, more and better prepared people are needed to identify opportunities and take full advantage of the global insertion of Mexico in the social, public, or private spheres. The undergraduate program in International Relations educates professionals with a comprehensive preparation enabling them to succeed in the globalized world of the twenty-first century. Its different courses are designed to develop skills so that the graduates can understand the complexity of the environment in which people inhabit and the significance of institutions, so that graduates can contribute to our peaceful coexistence, both nationally and globally, and to the development of a freer, more just, and more prosperous society. We are seeking graduates that will assume their social responsibility.

You will develop the skills that will make you stand out and be highly sought out in both the public and private sectors as well as in education and research. ITAM's International Relations graduates have been successful in all these areas, and therefore, you can count on a network of contacts during and after your studies.

Moreover, you will receive an interdisciplinary education including courses in politics, economics, and humanities as well as the opportunity to study practical case studies on relevant topics for the future generations, e.g., international security, human rights, and the environment.

Upon completing the undergraduate program in International Relations, you will be able to

- Represent Mexico internationally as well as advocate our country's interests and those of its citizens.
- Analyze the challenges of development both in Mexico and abroad and contribute to improving economic, political, social conditions in our country.
- Analyze investment and commercial opportunities in the world and provide advice to the big multinational companies.
- Work in an international organization and collaborate with countries from all over the world to achieve the United Nations' millennial goals. Work for society by contributing to the protection of human rights, the environment, and the advancement of education.

ITAM researchers are committed to research, thus, their published works have an important academic influence in that they determine our country's public, business, industrial policies. You will also have the opportunity to participate in the following activities enriching your academic experience beyond the classroom:

- Participate in the ITAM's United Nations model (ITAMMUN), one of the most successful and recognized Mexican models. It is an important exercise for students who want to pursue a career in the diplomatic service.
- Participate in international law and human rights contests and models.
- Take courses abroad in our summer program.
- Collaborate with the editorial team that supports the production of our publications, e.g., Foreign Affairs Latinoamérica, México en el Mundo, and Urbi et Orbi.

We have four undergraduate programs that you can take concurrently with International Relations: Business Administration, Political Science, Law, and Economics. Moreover, we have an exchange program abroad with the Université de Sciences Politiques in Paris, France, in which you can study concurrently and receive in five years both an undergraduate degree in International Relations from ITAM and a Diplôme de Sciences Politiques.
